THERE IS ROOM FOR A SUGAR MILL IN HONOLULU.

The non-success of past attempts to establish a sugar mill in the district of Honolulu, alluded to in our last issue, cannot be rightly regarded as evidence of the impracticability of the scheme. We are of opinion that the idea was a good one when first originated, and that it is equally good now; that the project was perfectly feasible at that time, and that it is none the less so now; that there was then opening for an enterprise of the kind, and that the opening has never since been closed—in fact, has gradually enlarged, so that now there is a better chance of success than at any previous time.

In the first place, land is abundant. In a radius of two miles from the centre of Honolulu there are hundreds of acres of unoccupied and uncultivated lands, owned by all classes and nationalities of our mixed community. Many of these lands are not suitable for banana raising, and others have not a sufficiency of water for taro planting; but most of them are well adapted to cane culture, and have a sufficient water supply for that purpose. On the authority of a practical and intelligent farmer, who has gone around the district in order to procure the information, we are able to state that more than five hundred acres of suitable and available land lies within the limits above named.

We also have good reason for saying that there is now better prospect of securing the co-operation of small farmers than formerly. Many, if not all, of those who so ignominiously backed out of the last move have long been convinced of their mistake and continue to bewail their short-sightedness. Beside these, many others have fallen into the same line of thought, and would be too glad to plant their small plots with cane, if they saw any chance of getting it converted into sugar.

The superior advantages which the district of Honolulu has of transporting cane to the mill is an important fact in favor of the venture. Bad as our roads are, and they are admitted to be shamefully bad for the metropolis of a Kingdom, they are far ahead of those of a majority of the plantations in the country. Here we would require no costly flumes nor expensive wire tramways. The matter of hauling the cane a mile or two in wagons would be easy and the cost comparatively light.

Another and considerable advantage is the saving of freight charges. All the plantations in the country districts of this island, and most of those on the other islands, get their machinery, coal, lumber, and other supplies from Honolulu. Then they have to send their sugar here to be transhipped for export abroad. The freight both ways forms a big item of expense. All this would be saved to a mill in this district, thus making the profits proportionably greater.

Next comes the question, in what way could the enterprise be started with the best chances of success? We suggest the formation of a co-operative joint-stock company, with a nominal capital, say, of fifty thousand dollars, divided into one thousand shares of fifty dollars each. Every cultivator, or intending cultivator, should have an opportunity of purchasing shares. The mill company, as a company, should not be planters; but individual members of the company would plant the cane and furnish it to the mill, to be ground on equitable terms. Will some man of energy step forward and take the matter in hand?

SENSATIONAL JOURNALISM.

We read, a short time ago, in one of our local papers, something about sensational journalism being on the decline in America. Well, if it is "on the decline" there, it is "on the revival" here. Or if "sensational" journalism is not reviving in this country, we have recently been treated to a class of journalism that can only be properly qualified by some strong adjective. One editor referring to another editor, calls him "a disappointed, conceited, scurvy politician." An honorable man may be "disappointed," or "conceited," or both; but "scurvy" is a loathsome epithet to apply to any man. It may hardly be correct to designate this "sensational" journalism, but no one will deny that it is "blackguard" journalism. And if we are allowed our choice, we prefer "sensationalism" to "blackguardism" any day and every day.

LOCAL AND GENERAL ITEMS.

The Hackmen's Association was duly formed last night.

The mail for San Francisco, per W. G. Irwin, closes at the Post Office at 1 p.m.

Those who are desirous of owning pigeons should read our advertising columns.

We were yesterday shown a very fine specimen of sugar cane over 14 feet long, grown at Kilauea.

We hear that His Majesty has received an autograph letter from the Khedive of Egypt by the last mail.

The receipts from the fair and luau in aid of St. Louis College amount to over $1,000. The gate money being about $350.

The lookout is being stretched out of plumb by the telephone wires. Even the masonry is a little out. Some day it will fall and make a fearful smash in the 'Tiser office.

An error has crept into yesterday's Gazette in their report of the Fort st. social. We notice that they have inadvertently omitted the name of Mrs. Hendry who gave an excellent reading entitled "Connor."

It is said that, of the 2 per cent. commission to be charged by the brokers of the loan in San Francisco, 1 1/2 per cent. is to be equally divided by two of the prominent ones in this island.

There is an awkward hole in the makai footpath of Beretania street, which certainly needs more light than that given by one hand-lantern, to enable people to avoid falling into it or over the heaps of black sand surrounding it.

It has been suggested to us that, on account of the great toughness of beef here, it would be a public boon if the butchers were to build a large ice house and keep their meat hanging in it at a temperature of 60 degrees for a couple of days or so, before they sold it. This, it is said, would certainly give us tenderer meat.

We have received a beautifully ornamented piece of bride cake from Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Meyer, and along with it some champagne in which to drink the health of the happy couple. Our whole staff unite with us in wishing that their united lives may be as rich and sweet as the cake, and as sparkling and merry as the wine. Our ALOHA to them both.

The P. C. A. yesterday reprinted extracts from an article in the S. F. Merchant concerning the issue of $800,000 of bonds for the new loan. How is that nothing was known of this intended issue of bonds at the Finance Department until the arrival of this mail? Is it possible that they were issued on the authority of one Minister without consulting his colleagues?

We were shown yesterday a very ingenious and attractive mechanical toy while looking at some of those beautiful Belfast linen handkerchiefs at Macfarlane & Co.'s. It represents a monkey dressed in the Court style of the 17th century, seated on a chair and playing a harp. While he picks the strings of the instrument he moves his head, rolls his eyes and opens his lips as in a musical ecstasy,

SOME relics of by-gone days have lately been attracting considerable attention in our streets. The outcroppings of old land marks are always interesting to the archaeologist and become more so when one falls across them, that is to say "takes a tumble" over them. [The above paragraph means that our Road Supervisor ought to dig up those pieces of wood which once formed the edge of former footpaths but now are obstructing the thoroughfare in Queen and Fort streets. —Ed.]

THE Musical and Literary entertainment on Tuesday evening at the rooms of the Library Association was excellent in all respects. To cover the expenses of getting it up, such as advertising, hiring extra seats &c., the small sum of 25 cents was charged for admission. To have a duet on two pianos by two such players as Misses Castle and Dowsett, piano and violin duet by Miss Castle and Prof. Yarnley, to say nothing of Miss Parke's singing, readings by Messrs. Wallace and Atkinson, and finally two excellent dramatic selections with three characters well taken in each, was considerably more than people generally get for such a sum either here or elsewhere. The liberality of the Association is to be commended no less than their enterprise.

"SHOULD baby's milk be boiled," asks the College and Chemical Record. Now this shows how much the subject of infant dietetics is being overstudied. We cling to the old-fashioned view, that babies should not be milked any way, much less have their milk boiled.
